

Sumeyye Balicok, Sadaf Mohammed, Farida Dad, Sadaf Batool, Aimen Tahir at the community day at Auburn Girls High School.

Auburn girl power

BRENTON CHERRY

AUSTRALIA'S future leaders may well come from Auburn.

A group of 30 Year 10 students from Auburn Girls High School recently completed the YWCA NSW Leadership Program called "Y It's All About You".

Students took part in activities which focused on enhancing their leadership abilities through developing effective communication skills, considering their role in the community, understanding personal rights and responsibilities and exploring career goals.

To complete the program the girls organised a community day at their school last month.

The event showcased cultural performances and offered food from a variety of ethnic groups representing the diversity of the school.

Funds raised by the day were donated to The Children's Hospital at Westmead and towards a school refurbishment project.

YWCA leadership coordinator, Rebecca Bernard said organising such a successful day was a fabulous achievement.

"The young women who were involved demonstrated outstanding leadership skills including excellent project management, cooperation and determination," she said.